EXPERIENCE

Jennifer Curtis is Vice President and General Counsel for Savannah River Nuclear Solutions. In this capacity, she is responsible for all legal activities and issues for the company in its execution of its Savannah River Site management and operations contract.

Ms. Curtis has over 35 years of significant legal experience in advising corporate managers on a broad array of legal issues. For 12 years, Ms. Curtis served as General Counsel to Fluor Hanford, which included labor and employment, environmental and nuclear regulatory matters, contracts, procurement, government and corporate ethics, tax, real property and intellectual property matters. In addition, she supervised in-house and outside counsel on several hundred cases, including federal and state litigation, federal and state administrative claims and labor grievance arbitration matters.

Prior to Hanford, Ms. Curtis served as General Counsel to Fluor Fernald in Cincinnati, Ohio. For nearly four years, Ms. Curtis had responsibility for a staff of four attorneys, a paralegal and two secretaries in addition to a broad array of legal issues similar to those at Hanford.

Before joining Fluor, she served as in-house counsel to both the Metro North Commuter Railroad and the New York Power Authority.
